Frederick of Luxembourg

Frederick of Luxembourg (965 – 6 October 1019), Count of Moselgau, was a son of Siegfried of Luxembourg and Hedwig of Nordgau.

By a wife whose name is unknown (certain historians give her as Ermentrude, Countess of Gleiberg), he had:

- Henry VII (d. 1047), Count of Luxembourg and Duke of Bavaria
- Frederick, Duke of Lower Lorraine (1030–1065), Duke of Lower Lorraine
- Giselbert of Luxembourg (1007–1059), Count of Longwy, of Salm, and of Luxembourg
- Adalbéron III (d. 1072), Bishop of Metz
- Thierry of Luxembourg, father of :
    - Thierry (d. 1075)
    - Henry, Count Palatine of Lorraine (d. 1095)
    - Poppon of Metz (d. 1103), Bishop of Metz
- Ogive of Luxembourg (990–1036); married in 1012 to Baldwin IV (980–1035), Count of Flanders
- Imiza of Luxembourg; married Welf II of Altdorf, Count in Lechrain (d. 1030)
- Oda of Luxembourg; canoness at Remiremont, then Abbess of Saint-Rémy at Lunéville
- Gisèle of Luxembourg (1019–after 1058); married Radulfe, Lord of Aalst (d. after 1038); parents of Gilbert de Gant

Frederick of Luxembourg
Count of Moselgau
Spouse(s)	Ermentrude, Countess of Gleiberg
Issue
Henry VII, Duke of Bavaria
Frederick, Duke of Lower Lorraine
Giselbert of Luxembourg
Adalbéron III
Thierry of Luxembourg
Ogive, Countess of Flanders
Imiza, Countess of Swabia
Oda of Luxembourg
Gisèle, Lady of Aalst
Father	Siegfried of Luxembourg
Mother	Hedwig of Nordgau
Born	965
Died	6 October 1019 (aged 53–54)

Categories: 965 births | 1019 deaths | House of Luxembourg